American Professional Society on the Abuse of Children – New York (APSAC-NY)

The New York State chapter of the American Professional Society on the Abuse of Children (APSAC) mission is to improve New York State's response to the identification, investigation, treatment and prevention of child abuse and neglect. Its membership is multidisciplinary, consisting of professionals and leaders in the field of child maltreatment in New York State. The New York State chapter of APSAC provides an opportunity for professionals in New York State to meet, share ideas and experiences, develop strategies for improving professional services to clients, influence public policy and educate the public, other professionals, and policy makers about child maltreatment.

Child Abuse Medical Provider Program (CHAMP)

Since its founding in 1997, the CHAMP Program has worked to improve New York State's medical response to child abuse. In addition to educating eligible pediatric practitioners to become CHAMP Network Members, CHAMP provides Internet-based education. These courses, webcasts, and web-based resources help medical providers improve the diagnosis, treatment and reporting of child abuse and neglect.

EDUCATIONAL WEBINARS

WEBINAR I February 14, 2018 from 12noon to 1pm

WHAT WE KNOW ABOUT THE HARMS LINKED TO PHYSICAL PUNISHMENT AND ABOUT INTERVENTIONS TO REDUCE IT IN MEDICAL SETTINGS

Elizabeth Gershoff, PhD

The majority of American parents spank their children, despite the fact that decades of research link spanking with harm to children. In this presentation, Dr. Elizabeth Gershoff will summarize the research and its implications for medical professionals. She will also describe several strategies in medical settings that have successfully changed parents' attitudes about and use of physical punishment.

WEBINAR II February 28, 2018 from 12noon to 1pm

PUNISHMENT AND DISCIPLINE: CHALLENGES AND STRATEGIES FOR MEDICAL PROFESSIONALS

Howard Dubowitz, MD, MS

Addressing punishment and discipline is a regular challenge in primary care. Parenting practices can have substantial and long lasting consequences for children's health and development. This session will offer practical guidance on screening for harsh punishment, engaging parents who may believe deeply in less than optimal approaches and encouraging them to adopt more constructive strategies. Participants will be invited to raise dilemmas they've faced in practice.

PRESENTERS' BIOGRAPHIES

Elizabeth Gershoff, Ph.D. is a Professor of Human Development and Family Sciences at the University of Texas at Austin. Her research focuses on how parental and school discipline affect child and youth development and how parent education and early education programs, such as the Federal Head Start program, can improve the lives of at-risk children. She is an internationally recognized expert on the effects of physical punishment on children. She currently serves as Director of the Interdisciplinary Collaborative on Development in Context and as Associate Director for Faculty Development at the Population Research Center, both at the University of Texas, Austin. Dr. Gershoff has been awarded numerous federal grants to support her research from the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, the National Institute for Mental Health, and the National Science Foundation.

Howard Dubowitz, M.D., MS is a Professor of Pediatrics and head of the Division of Child Protection within the Pediatrics Department, University of Maryland School of Medicine. Dr. Dubowitz is a Past-President of the Ray Helfer Society, an honorary international group of physicians working the child maltreatment field. He has served as on the Executive Council of the International Society for the Prevention of Child Abuse and Neglect and the national boards of the American Professional Society on the Abuse of Children and Prevent Child Abuse America. Dr. Dubowitz led the development of the Safe Environment for Every Kid (SEEK) model, building upon the opportunities in pediatric primary care to help prevent child abuse and neglect. Dr. Dubowitz has over 180 publications and he has presented at many national and international conferences.
